The 80/20 Principle

J. M. Juran suggested that most effects come from relatively few causes, that is, 80% of the effects come from 20% of the possible causes.

Other common references to the 80/20 principle (perhaps misquoted) are that “20% of the people do 80% of the work.” or that “20% of people take up 80% of our time.”
